The idea for this uncommon album-like issue of Mineralogical Almanac was born in our heads when the Denver Show Committee decided to feature Russian Minerals as a theme for the 2011 Show. Members of the Show Committee, headed this year by Larry Havens, strongly supported the idea and encouraged us to keep on with it. Terry Huizing and John Watson inspired us to keep the project foremost in our schedule.

Alexander A. Evseev gave great help in his compilation of the list of principal Russian localities and mineral species. Dr. Igor V. Pekov took charge of this issue from the initial sketch stage up to its final layout. His contribution in the preparation of this issue can hardly be overestimated. Choice of photos and the compilation of the final photoset was implemented by Michael B. Leybov and Ludmila A. Cheshko. Dmitry A. Kilpio is responsible for the design and layout of this issue and the advertisement images (if not sent to us camera-ready). Nikolay O. Parlashkevich, our Art Editor, was involved in creative and production stages from first days when the project started to the final day of the issue's appearance.

To illustrate this issue, we used mostly photographs of specimens taken in museums and private collections. We express our gratitude to the directors and curators of museums, and to collectors for their kind permission to use their photos:

 the first figure indicates the current number of the photo,
 the second figure (1-55) represents the locality number on the maps, the third figure (Roman I-IV) indicates the issue chapter. For example:

34 | 19 | II | Amethyst. 12 cm. Vatikha | Аметист. 12 см. Ватиха
